There was as much excitement in the market, as many thrills and throbs, as usually are found in a modern novel; many chances for getting in and out of the market with a little profit, if one could but guess it right.

The public has been doing a little more than nibbling of late; it has been buying stocks largely on margin, but in smaller amounts than ordinarily, this being an evidence of conservatism. The evident perfect control of the Harriman-Gould-Standard Oll combination has impressed itself upon the room traders as well as on the public, and they save simply been following, nor did hey get out to any extent on two or bree down-turns that the market sufpress of the same and the sa

From the earlier breaks the market had but little trouble recovering, at least partially. Indeed, one route was turned into a strong, active market in the closing hour of a session. It is scarcely probable that the powers that be are ready to stand from under, al-though they must have distributed a push it up for a good recovery.

As a matter of fact, the situation is largely akin to what it was twelve years ago, on the eve of the Presidential election that returned William Mc-Kinley as President, in the matter of business depression, idle cars, and hands and political matters badly mixed.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Money on call was nominally 2 per cent today. Time money during the week was generally offered and a moderately large business was the result. Rates were 2½ to 2½ per cent for sixty days, 3 for ninety days, 3½ for four months, 3½ for five view.

It is Presidential year, and there is much uncertainty in the air. The national treasury is withdrawing much currency from the banks, and will gradually reduce the balance. Business is currency from the banks, and will gradually reduce the balance. Business is improving, perhaps in the iron and steet trade and cotton trade, but slowly. General business is not good, and the railroad earnings are disappointing.

That Harriman et al. have been able to buil the market in the face of these conditions is a tribute to their financial strength and ability to draw a following in their movements. Such a good judge of market influences as Henry Clews recognizes the character of the influences at work.

"Since the panic, prices have risen from 20 to 50 points, an advance out of all proportions to the improvement in general conditions, and one that must be attributed to the manipulations of a few powerful operators having an abundance of cheap money," is the way iMr. Clews sizes up the situation.

Will Shorten Period.

Will Shorten Period.

He also calls attention to the influences that will shorten the period of easy money, the deficit of the Treasury the export of gold and the withdrawals of the Government deposits. And back of this is the period of crop movement, with its stringency—perhaps emergency. Mr. Clews urges some kind of a safeguard against a panic—some emergency measure to bridge over the situation until permanent action is taken.

The break in the market on the closing day of the week was the most severe. The leading rails, the inflated ones, that have been used to lead the upward flight, lost 4 to 5 points, others 1 to 3 and some industrials 1 to 2.

The close of the market was right down near the bottom, although there was a slight up-turn, due to covering by some bears who sold on the break, on the tap of the bell.

A study of the price-list for today's market will indicate the full effect of the bear turn. the export of gold and the withdrawals
